

Olive Oil Day Back Again!

After a year's hiatus, the Olive Oil Commission of California (OCC) held its annual Olive Oil Day on March 3, 2022, at the Robert Cabral Agricultural Center in Stockton. The purpose of the Olive Oil Day is to update OCC members and others in the industry about Commission-funded various research projects and other activities. In keeping with the OCC's objective of focusing research projects on areas that will improve returns to olive farmers, the majority of the presentations dealt with olive growing and pest management.

A summary of Olive Oil Day presentations is included in this newsletter. Power Point presentations and completed research reports are posted on the OCC's website here. We encourage you to review these materials and use them in your operations.

The OCC's Research Committee is in the process of determining projects for funding in the coming year. Funding will be approved in the coming months.
